Dear Parents, Teachers, Students and Staff,

As the final week of Advent lies before us we anticipate the birth of Jesus on Christmas. Throughout this season we have been reminded of the true meaning of Christmas. The presents shared by our students to families in need have brought joy to many hearts - those who have received and those who have given.

During this season our minds travel back over the past year. We, as Catholic schools, have experienced some sadness with the deaths of students, parents and faculty members. At the same time, we have experienced joy at the birth of new babies and recoveries from serious illness. All of these moments have brought us closer as a Catholic family. Let us remember all of these special intentions in prayer as the year continues.

May Jesus, His Blessed Mother and Joseph bring joy, peace and love to your families this Christmas. May He also guide you in your travels and bring you back safely in January of 2007.

Have a blessed Christmas.
